GROUND-BREAKING technology to develop a driverless car is being tested in Royal Greenwich.

The royal borough is the local authority partner in the GATEway project, which stands for 'Greenwich Automated Transport Environment'. It is one of three projects chosen by the government to test automated vehicles in urban environments. Also involved in the project is the University of Greenwich, who will undertake research on how people interact with driverless vehicles.

Council tax to be frozen for 8th year

by Dick Townsend-Smith

COUNCIL tax in the borough looks like being frozen once again – for the eighth year in a row.

Councillors are due to make a decision when the Cabinet meets tomorrow (Wednesday, February 18). A recommendation before them suggests that an increase will not be needed.

The council is confident a freeze is possible because of the tight rein it has kept on the purse-strings over the last 12 months.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the council, said: "I am very proud that, in spite of all the constraints to budgets, we have been able to protect and enhance the vital day-to-day services that all of our residents rely on. We are very aware that all of our residents, regardless of their situation or background, are finding managing the household budget a strain. This is why we're committed to doing everything in our power to enhance the local economy and to keep council tax bills as low as possible."

"However, we remain fully committed to protecting our frontline services, increasing growth, and making sure that all local people benefit from all the regeneration and development work that is going on in our borough."

Disgusted by dog waste on the common

IT was about this time last year that I wrote in about the amount of dog faeces around my area (Plumstead Common). I was amazed and disgusted to see that on my way to work last week there was basically a whole road covered in smelly dog muck - and a lot of it too. I am disappointed that dog owners actually let their dogs do their business and not clean it up, especially outside someone else's house. I would really love to get the message across that this is not acceptable.

Holly Ware, Plumstead

● Thanks for contacting GT about this issue. We agree that failing to clean up after your dog is irresponsible, lazy and dirty. The council's authorised enforcement officers will take action against dog owners who selfishly fail to clean up their dog's mess. Dog fouling is removed as part of the council's weekly scheduled sweep - however if there is a significant accumulation between sweeps, residents can report it on 020 8921 4661 or submitting an online form at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/dogfouling

Let's not eat meat on any day of the week

I REFER to Imogen Russell's letter in GT of February 10. She is, of course, quite right to suggest that not eating meat on Mondays is a great idea. Quite apart from the environmental element to meat eating there is the moral one. Meat eating inevitably involves cruelty to animals and ultimately some dulling of concerns for the rest of life - including human life. Therefore I would go further. Let us not eat meat on any day of the week. Not ever. We don't need to.

A project launch event was held last Wednesday (February 11) on the Greenwich Peninsula, which attracted a frenzy of media interest from journalists and television crews. And two government ministers were there to see the 'Meridian Shuttle' make its inaugural journey, with the world-famous O2 as the backdrop.

Business Secretary Vince Cable and Transport Minister Claire Perry were welcomed by Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the council and Cllr Sizwe James, the council's cabinet member for business employment and skills.

The Business Secretary said: "Driverless cars are the future. I want the UK to be open-minded and embrace a technology that could transform our roads and open up a brand new route for global investment. This is taking technology a step further, and has phenomenal potential."

Transport Minister Claire Perry added: "I want to thank the Greenwich team for all the work they have done so far, and I will be watching the trials with interest."

The council leader said: "I am very, very excited by this pilot. It's thrilling to see these trials get underway in Greenwich, cementing the area's reputation as a place of innovation and advancing new technology. Greenwich Peninsula provides the ideal location for us to explore what this technology can offer people."

Cllr James added: "The technology sector is really important for us here in Greenwich and we know that a project like this – with global interest – will bring new jobs to the area. New companies involved in this and other so-called 'Smart City' technology are already moving their business to Greenwich and we know more will follow. We already have more than 1,000 technology businesses based in the borough, and as this sector grows it will help to further strengthen the local economy."

New technology offers more council services online

THANKS to new technology, residents can now access even more services on the council's website.

The improvements are the latest in a range of developments which introduce new ways to apply, report and pay online for council services.

Applying or paying for services via the web will now be quicker and easier for residents, who will have 24 hour access. It will enable the council to deliver services more efficiently, freeing up customer services for those residents who need more assistance or have more complex needs.

Reporting road and street faults online is now easier with residents now able to fill in a simplified form and pinpoint the location on a map or send a photo to report common problems. There is also an option to report street problems using smartphones and tablets via the location settings or by typing in a postcode. The new form also collects more information to help the highways team locate and resolve the problem more efficiently.

Additionally, residents can now renew and pay for their parking permits in one complete transaction online. Until now, residents were required to apply by post or telephone, or come in to a council service centres in person.

Cllr Harry Singh, royal borough cabinet member for customer services, green technologies and IT told GT: "We hope that the upgraded system will make life easier for people when using the internet to tell us about a problem. The council is committed to improving our services for residents and make as much savings as possible; this new system is a great example of this."

'COME AND SEE BEHIND THE SCENES'

Have you ever wondered where the beef in your Big Mac comes from? Or how a Big Mac is made after you place your order?

McDonald's franchisee Taimoor Sheikh invites you into any one of his four branches; Woolwich, Thamesmead, Plumstead and Woolwich Church Street to learn more about our food, our commitment to our employees, our involvement in the community and our environmental initiatives. Plus you could have the chance to get behind the counter and prepare your very own complimentary burger!

At McDonald's we're passionate about serving affordable, great tasting food made with quality ingredients that are sourced sustainably; in an environmentally friendly, ethical and economical way. McDonald's are trusted by customers to provide high quality food and we believe that food quality begins at the first stage of the supply chain.

As a big customer of British and Irish farming, we buy quality ingredients from over 17,500 British and Irish farmers. We value what farmers have to contribute and we will continue to support them now and in the future. We only use free-range eggs and Freedom Food pork across our menu, including in our Bacon and Egg McMuffins.

Invitation by Taimoor Sheikh

The beef in our burgers, including the Big Mac and Quarter Pounder, is made from 100% British and Irish beef and we only use whole cuts of forequarter and flank. The only thing we add to our beef patties is a little salt and pepper after cooking.

Our coffee is made from Rainforest Alliance Certified Arabica beans and organic semi-skimmed milk to ensure you get the most delicious cup every time.

We're just as passionate about our people as we are about our food. McDonald's has built its reputation for providing an outstanding customer experience on the skill, talent, dedication and enthusiasm of the 100,000 people we employ across the UK. Across his four restaurants, franchisee Taimoor Sheikh employs 375 staff, who are all encouraged to take advantage of the training and qualifications offered, which include Maths and English and an Apprenticeship in Hospitality. Everyone who joins McDonald's has the opportunity to participate in a structured training programme that is designed for their position, from crew member through to restaurant management and beyond.

When it comes to the environment, sustainability is at the heart of our business. We are always looking for ways to improve our local communities and reduce our environmental footprint. That's why all McDonald's restaurants undertake daily litter patrols to help keep the local area clean and promote litter awareness. McDonald's recycles used cooking oil into biodiesel which we use to help fuel our delivery fleet and we're committed to creating energy from waste.

Royal launch for new hotel

THE borough's newest hotel has been officially 'topped out' by HRH The Duke of York.

Prince Andrew performed the ceremony at the 'InterContinental London The O2' on the Greenwich Peninsula on February 5.

It marked the completion of the highest point of the 18-storey luxury hotel, next to the O2, which is set to open this autumn. It will have 453 guestrooms and suites, a luxury spa with indoor pool, restaurants and bars - including an all-day dining restaurant, a tea salon and a rooftop bar. There will also be a conference centre with a huge 3,100sq metre pillar-free ballroom which can take up to 3000 guests, and 20 meeting rooms.

Speaking at the ceremony, Surinder Arora, chief executive of the Arora Group, the hotel's operators, said: "We are delighted to have reached this significant milestone in the hotel's construction. Working alongside great partners, we're on track to open one of the most significant new hotel developments London has witnessed for several years, with events space to rival many of Europe's largest conference venues and fantastic new leisure and business facilities to join the vibrant mix of entertainment and corporate space here in Greenwich."

Fitness centres makeover

MAJOR new improvements at two of the royal borough's leisure centres are complete.

The council and Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL) are set to unveil a £990,000 refurbishment project of facilities at Coldharbour and Thamesmead Leisure Centres.

Both fitness centres have had a massive overhaul with new and upgraded equipment, additional free weights and resistance equipment has been added to fill the demand at peak times.

Changing rooms have been retiled and are more energy efficient with new lighting, while new hair dryers have also been installed. Reception areas have had more 'fast track' kiosks put in to get customers into the centres more quickly, as well as new flooring, lighting and seating area.

Refurbishments at Coldharbour and Thamesmead Leisure Centre took approximately nine months to complete, both centres remained open so disruption could be kept to a minimum.

Cllr Miranda Williams, the royal borough's cabinet member for culture and creative industries said: "I'm delighted that the renovation on these two leisure centres is complete and that our local residents will soon be enjoying the huge benefits of this new investment. The revamped centres boast many significant improvements further developing the first class facilities that the royal borough offers.

The council remains completely committed to ensuring that local residents have the best opportunity to engage in regular sport and exercise as part of an active and healthy lifestyle and this investment will provide even better opportunities for local people to do so."

A golden anniversary

Borough of Greenwich celebrates 50 years

by Dick Townsend-Smith

AN historic civic birthday is just round the corner.

For April 1, 2015, will be the 50th anniversary of the London Borough of Greenwich.

Back on that date in 1965, the two old Metropolitan Boroughs of Woolwich and Greenwich merged to form a brand new local authority, and become part of the newly-launched Greater London Council.

The borough's first Mayor was Councillor William AG Brooks, who was also a Justice of the Peace. And boundary changes at the time meant that North Woolwich became part of the New London Borough of Newham.

At the time there were mutterings among some people about the name of the new authority and whether it should be named after the town centres of Woolwich, Greenwich or Charlton. Those in the eastern half of the borough wanted it to be called the London Borough of Woolwich, arguing that the town was bigger and had more residents. Honour seems to have been satisfied after it was decided to make the Victorian Woolwich Town Hall in Wellington Street the new borough's seat of local government.

The old Art deco-style Greenwich Town Hall and the Borough Hall, on the corner of Greenwich High Road and Royal Hill, are now used as a management school and a dance academy.

The Greater London Council was abolished in 1986, and the Greater London Authority (GLA) was set up in 2000 to act as the top-tier administrative body for Greater London, with its own directly elected executive Mayor of London.

Another important change came in 2012, when on February 3, Her Majesty The Queen bestowed royal status on the borough, which then became the Royal Borough of Greenwich.

Today Royal Greenwich is a member of London Councils, the cross-party organisation that works on behalf of all its member authorities regardless of political colour. It makes the case to government, the Mayor and others to get the best deal for Londoners and ensure that its members have the resources, freedoms and powers to do the best possible job for their residents and businesses.

Greenwich Mayor Cllr Mick Hayes, told GT: "I am the latest in a long line of mayors, or 'first citizens', whose origins date back a thousand years to Norman times. In my lifetime alone, Royal Greenwich has seen many changes and developments in the way in which it is administered, and I feel honoured to be serving as Mayor as we mark the 50th anniversary of our borough."

E-Business boost for firms

LOCAL entrepreneurs have praised an E-Business support programme which gives help and advice about trading online.

More than 120 Greenwich businesses have already signed up to the programme, which is run by South East Enterprise and backed by the council and helps companies become more cost effective and productive online.

Business owner Juliet Olasiyan, who is managing director of care & training provider Living Spring Solutions Ltd, said: "My company has already benefited from the Royal Greenwich E-business support programme. The support, advice, information and training has helped us to grow our business in areas such as recruitment, cut costs and provided a secondary income through hiring our training room and hot desk. Knowing that their support is available to me has given me peace of mind."

The E-Business support programme runs until March 2017.

If you are interested in joining the programme call South East Enterprise on 020 8305 2666 or email e-business@seenterprise.co.uk

Care home closure plan

Royal borough urges rethink

FORTY-FOUR elderly and vulnerable people could be forced to move after a care home announced it is closing.

The royal borough is calling on Avante to halt its proposals to close Sunbury Lodge registered older people's care home in Woolwich.

The company which runs three care homes in the borough agreed to consult on closure after a recommendation from their board of management. Consultation is due to last a month with proposals to close the home in Sunbury Street later this year.

Since it heard of the closure proposals a few days ago, the royal borough has been urging Avante to consider options other than closure, and to allow for further discussions.

The company has already held meetings with residents and their families at which it was made clear that the company would 'in all probability' close the care home later this year.

The care home which caters for older people with mental health or dementia conditions currently has 32 residents placed by the royal borough. Four are funded by other local authorities and eight places are funded by the residents themselves.

The royal borough is assuring residents that if Avante do go ahead with closure, it will work closely with residents and their families, as well as with Oxleas and other health agencies, to minimise disruption and ensure that every resident is found alternative accommodation that meets their needs.

Leader of the royal borough Cllr Denise Hyland said, "Along with residents and their families I was shocked at the announcement by Avante that it was proposing to consult on closing Sunbury Lodge."

PROPOSED CLOSURE:
Sunbury Lodge
in Woolwich

"This was not something that was discussed in advance with us. As well as the clear and obvious impact that this decision will have on vulnerable residents and their families, the decision will also place additional burden on the council at a time of severe financial pressures."

"Our first priority at all times is towards the health and quality of life of all our residents and we will work tirelessly to ensure continued care to the highest possible standard, as well as offering support to residents and families in responding to Avante's consultation."

"I am inviting Avante to meet me and justify their proposed closure of Sunbury Lodge."

'Our first priority is towards the health and quality of life of all our residents'

SMOKE LESS RULE: health campaigners and local firefighters are joined by Cllr Maureen O' Mara to launch the campaign and spread the message about the dangers of passive smoking

MPs back our smokefree campaign

THE royal borough's health campaign to encourage smokers not to light up at home or in their cars has been given a major boost by Parliament.

On the day when the Greenwich campaign kicked off, MPs voted in favour of banning smoking in cars when children are present.

The new regulations will come into effect on October 1.

Cllr Maureen O' Mara, the royal borough's cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health, said: "This campaign is different from the usual roadshows which focus on helping people to quit smoking. This time our focus is on helping smokers to appreciate the harm they may be causing to their family members when they smoke at home or in their car. It's better to stop smoking completely, of course – and there is plenty of support available to help people. But if you do smoke, it is much better for the health of those around you if you protect them from second-hand smoke."

The Greenwich Healthy Living team has been running roadshows offering tips on how to make homes and cars smoke-free. Visitors can get a free lung and carbon monoxide test and help with quitting smoking.

Roadshow visitor John Cochrane, 62, from Greenwich, said: "Not many people know the dangers of second-hand smoke."

All great sports

Over 200 give their views on Sutcliffe Park proposals

OVER 200 residents have already had their say on proposals for a new multi-sports centre at Sutcliffe Park.

They gave their views at two consultation events last week.

The events allowed local people to give their opinions on the range of activities that could be available at the new venue and to see plans of how the building might look.

The initial proposals for the sports centre - which received outline planning permission in May 2014 - would see it fitted out with new indoor athletics facilities, a community café, public toilets and classrooms.

Other facilities under consideration include indoor cricket, climbing, bouldering, high, BMX and skateboarding as well as high ropes.

One of the main concerns raised related to where the entrance to the site would be located, with lots of residents favouring moving the entrance and exit to Eltham Road instead of Kidbrooke Park Road.

The council has worked with the local MP, Clive Efford, and TfL to agree this suggested change in order to retain more green space in the park.

Residents were also concerned about the amount of car parking spaces proposed for the park and the council has taken this on board in its revised plans.

Mick Bond, chairman of Cambridge Harriers Athletics Club said: "It was great to see the plans for the new sports facility in Kidbrooke and to be given the opportunity to feed into the proposals. The council has invested a huge amount of money in new sports facilities and these plans will continue that trend."

"Cambridge Harriers have a long associated with Sutcliffe Park having trained there for over 20 years. We've a great track record of training athletes who have gone on to represent their countries. These new facilities will enable us to extend our training provision to even more young people from across the borough and help even more fulfil their full potential."

The council will now continue its pre-planning consultation with local schools to engage the views of local students and to find out what activities they would like to see provided there.

Go wild for ecology park's birthday

GREAT OUTDOORS: all ages enjoy the activities on offer at the ecology park

YOUNG people have the chance to get up close to urban wildlife, as the Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park celebrates its 13th birthday this month.

The free drop-in activities include fun quiz trails and a special event on Thursday (February 19), to make mobiles to take home.

There are also opportunities to try willow coppicing – the traditional way of managing woodland by cutting down tree stems to weave into fencing. There are free Wednesday and Saturday workdays, as most habitat management work takes place during winter and willow coppicing is now in full swing.

Joanne Smith, Senior Warden at the Ecology Park said: "Don't sit at home feeling blue in the colder months. Come and recharge your batteries, get a dose of green medicine and have some fun with us at the Ecology Park for free. You'll see what a fantastic urban oasis this place is and you'll leave feeling invigorated, a smile on your face and a hop in your step."

The park is at Thames Park, John Harrison Way, on the Greenwich Peninsula. It is trying to raise £60,000 for a new outdoor classroom.

Businesses rate Living Wage offer

Rebates for firms form part of council's anti poverty drive

BUSINESSES have started to sign up to pay the London Living Wage after welcoming the council's offer of discounted rates.

Chartered surveyors and construction consultants Martin Arnold Associates were among the first to make a pledge to pay the Living Wage.

The firm has been based on the Royal Arsenal for 12 years and employs 70 people. Managing director Jim Martin said: "The support we got from the council enabled us to do this and the benefits will flow particularly for our graduates, trainees and apprentices. It's an initiative that any responsible employer will support."

The royal borough is offering discounted business rates to local firms paying the London Living Wage (a minimum of £9.15 per hour).

The first 100 local employers that become London Living Wage accredited during 2015/16 will receive a rebate on their business rates to cover five years' worth of Living Wage Foundation subscriptions.

The offer is aimed to encourage local businesses looking at making the change

by Dan Stephens

to the London Living Wage, so supporting local employees and the local economy in general.

It's all part of an anti-poverty drive by the council which is committed to ensuring that as many workers in the borough as possible earn the London Living Wage as a minimum. The council itself is an accredited London Living Wage employer, paying all staff and agency workers a minimum of £9.15 per hour.

The scheme has been welcomed by Steve Nelson, the principal director of the South East London Chamber of Commerce. He said: "Anything that can be done to get more people on the London Living Wage is to be welcomed. This is an admirable and generous gesture by the council, and I am right behind it."

Distracted students win £300

STUDENTS from Plumstead Manor won £300 for their school in a 'Dragon's Den' style competition held at Charlton House.

The Year 7 and Year 8 students, who are on the school's Health Council and are Youth Travel Ambassadors, competed with three other borough schools to raise awareness of road safety. The schools were asked to present their ideas for safer and more sustainable travel to and from school.

A panel of judges from the council and Transport for London judged the quality of their pitches. Plumstead Manor's 'Team Distraction' demonstrated walking across the road while texting, wearing headphones or chatting on the phone. Their slogan was 'One text, one call, could wreck it all'. Their winning £300 will be used by the school to improve road safety awareness.

Phone fraudsters' new bogus police scam

Crafty crooks pretend to be boys in blue for latest con trick

by Dick Townsend-Smith

CROOKS are once again preying on vulnerable people in the borough by phoning them and pretending to be police officers.

In the last three months the council's trading standards team has been contacted by a growing number of residents who have been getting scam calls.

The callers usually give a convincing story such as "your credit card has been fraudulently used in central London", or "your card is being used to buy high value goods in Selfridges" or "your card has been cloned".

They will then ask the person to call them back to confirm it is the police who are calling them. But the caller does not disconnect, and leaves the line open. This means the resident is immediately connected back to the scam caller.

The fraudster's aim is to get the residents' bank details, card details, cash or the actual card itself. They say they will send a courier or taxi to collect directly from the resident.

Once a person falls victim to a telephone scam it is quite likely that their details will be sold on to other scam callers and organised crime groups. This means that the person is then targeted again and again. Some victims have lost thousands of pounds this way.

In extreme situations, where victims are targeted repeatedly, technology can be used to block unwanted calls. More information on this is available from Greenwich Trading Standards.

The vital things to remember are that your bank and the police would:

NEVER ask you to withdraw money and send it to them via a courier or taxi

NEVER ask you to send your bank cards, or any other personal property, to them via courier or taxi

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Please heed these warnings. There are individuals and gangs out there who will stop at nothing to trick people into parting with their savings or valuables. If you have any doubts at all, put your phone down."

Feel better with Tai Chi

by Richard Morgan

IT improves our core balance, develops inner strength and relaxes our tension-soaked bodies.

It requires minimal equipment, is relatively low cost and burns calories at the same rate as walking.

A Taoist monk named Chang San-Feng discovered Tai Chi - or "boundless fist" - around 1200 AD. Chang studied the agility of the crane and the snake and constructed exercises to mimic their fluidity.

Now the Taoist Tai Chi Society, which teaches in 26 countries worldwide with around 280 classes in the UK, have just opened a new club in Greenwich's West Community and Arts Centre. Anyone from 16 to 90 is welcome with participants from all walks of life.

There are a number of styles - some more forceful - like tai chi fighting - than others, but for the most part, the movements are gentle. Body weight is transferred from one half to the other while the head and the trunk are rotated. Breathing in from the diaphragm, the mind remains focused, inner calm gently building from within. "It undoubtedly cuts stress improving the balance of both body and mind," accredited instructor, Elisha Jones told Greenwich Time.

It takes about three months to assimilate the 108-movement 'set' but three years to become an instructor. Her co-instructor and husband Peter, was equally convinced: "Regular practice brings a whole range of benefits to the muscular, skeletal and circulatory systems". Their inaugural open evening was extremely well attended, the participants eager to learn. "My parents encouraged me and it has definitely helped with my blood pressure," said local resident Andrew Gidman. It's a registered charity - the instructors are unpaid - so the annual costs are quite modest. A new beginners class started last Thursday and runs each week from 7-9pm at West Greenwich House. It's a chance to slow down and unwind after work so pop down there and give it a go!

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

Town hall honour

TEACHERS, support staff and school governors who go the extra mile to ensure the children and young people in the borough's primary and secondary schools get the best education possible have been named and honoured.

It came at the first Royal Greenwich School Awards, at Woolwich Town Hall last Tuesday (February 10). Headteachers and chairs of governors were asked to nominate staff who had made an exceptional contribution to education and the learning and well-being of the children.

The event was hosted by Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the council. She said: "In Greenwich children are more likely to go to a good or outstanding school than in the rest of the country. We are really proud of that. But, actually what is really important is that you are too. I know that school leaders and staff care passionately about providing the best possible education for our children.

"What I really admire is that you work together to achieve that. School-to-school support is working for Greenwich schools and Greenwich children. I am really pleased that, regardless of different governance arrangements, Greenwich schools continue to work together."

The Teacher of the Year award went to Maxine Ferguson from Eltham Hill Secondary. The judges said: "Maxine is an outstanding classroom practitioner. Her work is transforming lives. She is truly committed to the school's maxim of Excellence, Happiness and Success for all our students."

The Governor of the Year award went to Ian Taylor, former chair of governors at Mulgrave Primary in Woolwich. He attended Mulgrave as a pupil, as did his two children who now attend local secondary schools. The judges said his contribution as a governor was "a thoughtful and well-measured balance between the challenge and support of a critical friend; his commitment to a broad learning experience for children – the residential trips, the school's creative curriculum and sustainability through the arts; and an emphasis of improving standards and the quality of learning for all children."

The Support Staff of the Year award went to Bobbie McCabe, higher-level teaching assistant at Cherry Orchard Primary in Charlton. The judges said: "Bobbie contributes to every aspect of school life. Her vision and her skill make a huge difference for all of us in this community, not only at Cherry Orchard but across the whole educational community of Greenwich."

Charlton House will be playing its part in the latter with a Chinese art exhibition this month. In celebration of the Chinese New Year of the Sheep, the mansion's tea rooms are displaying the works of 10 outstandingly talented local Chinese artists.

The exhibition has been jointly organised by Global Fusion Music & Arts - the Greenwich community arts group; the UK Chinese Ensemble - Europe's leading Chinese music agency and Opustique Infinity Ltd - a UK-based company of Sino-British young professionals devoted to cultural exchanges.

"We're rapidly expanding across Greenwich borough and this is our inaugural Chinese event," said Louisa Le Marchand, project manager for GFMA.

An event launch appropriately takes place on Chinese New Year - Friday, February 20 at 7pm - in the Mulberry Tea Rooms at Charlton House. There will be a further display by young Chinese artists, live music from a Chinese String Duo, a live demonstration of Tai Chi and a marvellous selection of fresh Chinese food - and best of all the admission is free!

But the focus is clearly on the artists themselves with some their work quite, outstanding. The most celebrated of the artists is Eltham local, Sheng Qi, best known for his act of defiance. A graduate from the Central Academy of Art and Design in Beijing, he cut off his own little finger.

Fine China art

Richard Morgan previews Charlton House celebrations for Chinese New Year

"My work is a protest, and is not meant to give 'comfortable feelings,' he said after Tiananmen Square.

He refers to his self-mutilation as "his life's proudest moment" and this theme underlies all his work.

If Shang Qi's work portrays China's remarkable history, Mang Li depicts everyday life. Exhibiting his work round the world for three decades, his longevity is impressive indeed.

The art display runs throughout February, to book a place for the exhibition launch event on Friday, February 20 call 020 8858 9497 or visit globalfusionarts@yahoo.co.uk

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

IMPORTANT POLICY INFORMATION FOR THOSE AWARDED PRIORITY

When a priority is awarded, you will receive one offer of accommodation.

The following rules are used to allocate properties to applicants in Bands A, B and C, to make sure the Council makes best use of housing stock to meet needs.

- Two children (whatever gender) under 10 years old can share a bedroom
- Two children (same gender) under 16 years old can share a bedroom
- Two children of opposite gender where at least one is 10 years old or over need a bedroom each
- Each person over 16 years old needs their own bedroom
- A couple and lone parents need one bedroom
- Expected babies are counted as a person from the six month of pregnancy
- Band C applicants - Houses are allocated to a household with children (aged 15 or under)

Only RBG tenants who currently occupy houses in bands A and B, will be considered for rehousing to another house. All other priority applicants will be considered for flats or maisonettes.

Note: There are separate Allocations Policies for applicants with priority from regeneration areas.

Like for Like Moves

Council tenants housed through priority Bands A & B, are generally offered a similar type of property to that they currently occupy, of the size they require. This is because rehousing is being offered to meet safety or other needs, rather than to provide more desirable housing. Tenants, who want to move to improve the quality of their accommodation, must do so through Band C, where applicants are housed in date order.

For full details on our policies, please see the Allocations Scheme which is available on the Royal Borough of Greenwich website

We're bowled over

Girls indoor cricket team qualify for Lord's

ROYAL Greenwich's young cricketers have won through to a prestigious final at Lord's after going unbeaten through the Balfour Beatty London Youth Games Indoor Cricket female qualifiers.

The girls' borough team, aged year 8 and under, topped group 3 to qualify at Harrow Leisure Centre on February 8.

They beat Brent and Hounslow in an impressive all-round team display and can now look forward to the finals alongside seven other boroughs at Lord's on March 1.

Their opening match against Hounslow, saw them put over 100 runs on the board and they showed great discipline with the ball to knock their opponents over for less than half of their total while against Brent they successfully chased down their total for the loss of just one wicket.

Team manager Gill Moore was delighted with the team's performance and highlighted where her team's success came from: "Straight bowling, not giving away too many extras and that I think has been a really good thing. Our first match we didn't lose any wickets and we only lost one wicket in the second so that makes a lot of difference but the straight bowling is key in indoor cricket."

Their performance was even more impressive considering the team had only two hours of training before the qualifiers.

"We do have a very, very good strong team spirit so when the girls do get together they seem to know each other really well," Gill added.

And while she is hoping her team medals at Lord's, she knows the draw will play a big part:

"I would like to think we can medal but it all depends on who we draw in the quarter-final!"

Indoor cricket is one of 31 sports in the 2015 Balfour Beatty London Youth Games.

The annual youth sports event is one of the largest and is driving the legacy for increased participation in competitive sport and volunteering for young Londoners.

Almost 127,000 young Londoners took part in last year's youth games, taking the event to over 1 million participants since it first launched in 1977.

MORE than 40 women and girls were treated to some first class basketball coaching at the Waterfront Leisure Centre.

It was courtesy of Greenwich Leisure Ltd (GLL) and Sport England's 'For the Girls' scheme. A unique, women-only basketball initiative, the event was designed to encourage women and girls aged between 14 and 25 years to take part in regular sport and physical activity.

Participants learned a wide range of basketball skills including dribbling, passing and shooting from Greenwich Sports Academy coaches, while some of them used their new found talents to take part in a competitive match. Free group exercise and cycling classes were also on offer, while an onsite DJ played the latest tunes and a basketball freestyler showed off an array of ball skills and tricks.

Nicola Reid, For the Girls co-ordinator for Greenwich told GT: "Our aim is to get more women and girls playing sport in Greenwich and the For the Girls programme is an excellent chance for them to do this".

Ruby Shand from Plumstead was one of the women who took part and said: "This is a great start to my year, it has helped me to get more active and I've now booked myself onto an exercise class".

The For the Girls scheme was launched in 2014 by former Big Brother winner turned personal trainer and nutritionist Josie Gibson. The scheme aims to encourage 5,000 girls and women aged between 14 and 25 years who have not previously been physically active, to take part in a range of sports.
